State Committee Refuses to Knock Smith's Candidacy

Only Dissenting Vote Is Cast by Chairman J. D. Head

SERIES OF PROTESTS

Proposed Investigation of Party Had Brought Bitter Words

LITTLE ROCK.—(A)—The Democratic State Committee refused Saturday to consider the eligibility of Griffin Smith as a candidate for chief justice of the Arkansas supreme court. Chairman James D. Head of Texarkana was the only member casting a dissenting vote.

Dismissal Was Predicted

Dismissal of the Griffin Smith eligibility question without action by the Democratic central committee secretary, Harvey G. Combs, Friday on the eve of the group's special session. Combs eliminated a series of public protests against the proposed party investigation by asserting that the state controller is "eligible under party rules" to seek the Democratic nomination for chief justice of the supreme court.

The secretary said he would not have accepted Smith's campaign pledge and fee if he had not considered him eligible.

He said the party's jurisdiction of whether Smith was eligible to hold the office he seeks, but added in his personal opinion the controller also meets the constitutional requirements on that question.

Informed sources also echoed Combs' statement that no action would be taken by the committee on the Smith issue.

Drouth Area Gets But Little Rain

Coastal Showers Revive Crops in Some Sections of Carolina

ATLANTA.—(A)—Coastal showers renewed the scope of the Southeast's $100,000,000 drouth Friday, but left unchanged the plight of thousands of inland farmers.

Rain revived crops in scattered areas from Charleston, S. C., to the truck gardens of Maryland's Chesapeake bay country.

Clear skies prevailed over most of Eastern Alabama, North Georgia, Tennessee, the Carolinas and Virginia. Stunted cotton, corn and tobacco plants drooped under the sun.

Secretary Wallace assigned Department of Agriculture workers to devise a federal relief plan.

Ministers of Georgia and South Carolina arranged prayers for rain. Gov. Eugene Talmadge, Georgia plantation operator, suggested 3 p. m. Sunday for the services.

Potatoes were selling in some sections at $5 per hundred in carload lots.

Cotton, tobacco and corn were threatened by drouth and forest fires.

Postmaster Wilson Explains Procedure for Payment of Bonds

HUGE UNDERTAKING

Bonds Can Be Delivered Only to the Veteran in Person

Postmaster Robert Wilson said Saturday that approximately 600 World War veterans would receive bonus bonds in Hempstead county, to be mailed from St. Louis June 15.

Delivery in the county is expected to be made by the postoffice department the following day. In a statement Mr. Wilson explained the procedure for delivery and payment. His statement:

"In the delivery and payment of World War veterans' adjusted service bonds, better known as 'bonus' bonds, the Post Office Department has assumed responsibility for the biggest undertaking of such nature ever attempted. The magnitude of the task will be realized when it is considered that there are approximately two million, three hundred thousand veterans to whom these bonds will be issued and that the average veteran will receive ten of the $50 bonds.

"Word War veterans as a class represent a cross section of the citizenship of the United States. They live in every nook and corner of the country and are found in every conceivable walk of social and economic life.

"Naturally, no department of the government is so well equipped and organized to effect prompt and efficient delivery of the bonds, and the payment of same, as is the post office department.

"In Hempstead county, it is estimated that there are approximately 550 to 600 veterans who will receive bonus bonds. Bonds for this section are expected to be mailed out of St. Louis, Mo., on June 15 and will probably be ready for delivery by the various offices of the county on June 16.

"The exact date of the delivery, however, will be announced later. The bonds will be sent by registered mail, and the veteran will be required to sign a regular registry receipt and also a return receipt when he receives the letter containing his bonds.

"Delivery will be made to the veteran only and under no circumstances can delivery be made to any other person, not even upon the veteran's written order.

"If a veteran has removed from the jurisdiction of the post office to which his bonds are addressed, they cannot be forwarded to him at another office. Before the delivery of the bonds to a veteran can be made, he must be positively identified to the post office employee who makes the delivery.

"If the veteran is not known personally to the employee, it will be necessary that he be identified by some responsible person who is known to the employee, and the identifying person must also sign the registry receipt.

"Each letter containing bonds will be addressed to the veteran in the exact manner in which he gave his address upon the application which he made for the bonds. It is very essential, therefore, in the case of those veterans who gave their home addresses on their applications, that they remain at home on the date that the bonds are to be delivered, or that they notify the post office in advance that they wish their bonds to be held at the post office and delivered to them there.

"This is especially important in the case of veterans who live on rural routes. Such veterans should not only remain at home on the date of delivery, but should arrange to be present at their respective mail boxes when the carrier arrives and, if not personally known to the carrier, to have some person with them who is known to the carrier and who will be able to identify the veteran.

"Post office employees will be held strictly accountable by the department in the matter of identification of veterans to whom delivery of bonds is made, and the co-operation of the veterans as well as the general public, is earnestly sought in this respect.

"After the proper delivery of the bonds, the post office department has also undertaken the huge task of certifying the request for payment of the bonds, and the effecting of the actual payment of same.

"In this connection, all veterans should give serious consideration to the fact that these bonds are interest bearing Government obligations and represent the highest type of investment, the same as any other government bond. The bonds will draw interest at the rate of 3 per cent per annum, but no interest will be paid on any bond cashed prior to June 15, 1937. The bonds are not transferable or negotiable under any conditions and no attempt should be made to buy or sell them.

"In all instances where it is possible to do so, the veteran should refrain from cashing his bonds and should

We have come from yesterday,
Let us rest us not, instead,
Of the weary way ahead,

Roosevelt Withholds Attack On Shifty G. O. P. Target

By BYRON PRICE
Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington

The prediction that President Roosevelt would compete with the Republican national convention for publicity, and seek to blanket it, seems likely to quell as the season's worst political guess.

There were at least two good reasons, all the time, for being certain he would attempt no political bombshelling in the speeches he was booked to make in the south and west during Cleveland convention week.

One was that that hardly would be the time, when the Republican picture was changing from day to day, to take up major campaign issues. It would be too much like shooting at a rapidly-moving target.

The other reason was that it would take something like super-human effort to dislodge any national convention of a great party from page one.
The reading public likes its conventions too much.

No one versed either in politics or publicity was surprised when it developed that Mr. Roosevelt proposed to confine his speeches to more or less philosophic discussions of past historic events, and leave the event at Cleveland for future reference.

Lehman Action Uncertain

Much manifestly futile speculation likewise is being expended on the question whether the President, or anyone else, will insist that Governor Lehman of New York reverse his decision and run for re-election.

If the draft is exercised on Mr. Lehman, it will not be done for some time. It would be the worst politics in the world for the governor to say one week he wouldn't run, and then say the next he would.

Washington has been hearing a lot about another Democratic governor,
but in a different way.

In Indiana, a state executive is ineligible for re-election. Insistent war has come out of that state, however,

Roosevelt. It is believed that there is

Officials of the Mississippi River Commission at Vicksburg, Miss., said that virtually all the $272,000,000 provided for flood control work under the bill will be spent in Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana. More than $50,000,000 remaining from the flood control act of 1928 also will be available.

River Commission members said that the work will greatly reduce flood dangers and will stimulate business in the three states.

The Overton bill provides for a new levee system to protect the St. Francis river valley, for the Eudora (Ark.) floodway and for construction of seven reservoirs on the upper reaches of the Yazoo valley in Mississippi.

It is estimated that more than $100,- 000,000 will be spent in construction of the Eudora floodway.

The government will spend huge sums for land for the floodway. Engineers say that construction of the floodway will reduce dangers of floods along the entire Mississippi river front of Arkansas.

It is estimated that $16,000,000 will be spent on the St. Francis river projects in Arkansas and Missouri.

The act authorizes the chief of army engineers to construct a reservoir instead of a levee system if he considers this advisable, but limits the cost to $16,000,000. The act also provides for dredging and diversion of the river.

About $12,000 will be spent on a White river project in Phillips county.

Zioncheck to Be Arrested Again

Faces Charge for Attack
on Woman Apartment
Owner

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Warrants for the arrest of Representative Marion A.
Zioncheck of Washington state and his wife, the former Miss Ruby Nix, were handed police Friday to be served as soon as the congressman leaves Gallagher hospital where he is undergoing mental tests.

The warrants, charging the Zion-checks with assaults on Mrs. Benjamin Scott Young, who sublet her apartment to the congressman last winter, were issued by Police Court Judge John P. McMahon.

Hospital attendants said Friday that "there have been no definite findings in the Zioncheck case," and that they had no idea when their patient might be released.

Lying on a cot in the municipal court building, Mrs. Young told Assistant United States Attorney Karl Kindleberger her story of a scuffle in the Zioncheck apartment the night of May 29. Her attorneys, Philip Herrick and R. H. McNeill, said she was unable to walk because of a hip injury suffered when the Zionchecks ejected her from the apartment.

Kindleberger took the testimony of two reporters for a local newspaper, who said they witnessed the alleged disturbance.

Best Harvest in 4 Years Predicted

Improved Wheat Prospects Bring Smiles to Kansas Farmers

TOPEKA, Kan.—(P)—Wheat is turning from green to gold on the Kansas plains and the state is talking optimistically of the "best harvest" in four years. With harvest only a few weeks away, farmers look for a crop of at least 100,000,000 bushels. Not since 1932 has that much been produced.

Not that 100,000,000 bushels would be a bumper crop. Farmers will remember the big 1931 yield of 239,000,- 000 bushels—the largest on record.

Yet, 100,000,000 bushels would be pleasing this year, say agricultural leaders, following the low crop years of 1932-35 inclusive that produced an average of less than 65,000,000 bushels.
Last year's yields was only 59,000,000 bushels.

nied a petition for rehearing Monday.

House's conviction was affirmed three months ago and a petition for rehearing denied, but Governor Futhis execution until court took final action in the Draper case.

Tax Bill Finally Passed by Senate

Measure Is Designed to Bring in $829,000,000
in New Revenue

WASHINGTON.—(P)—The senate
finally passed a tax bill Friday night, and sent it to conference with the house where an entirely new revenue measure may be drawn. The vote was 37 to 24.

Containing scores of amendments which left only a vestige of the bill passed by the House and of the recommendations of President Roosevelt, the measure was described as capable of bringing in $829,000,000 in new revenue.

It would impose a $50,000,000 tax burden on all individuals who pay surtax brackets above $50,000. From corporations and their shareholders, it would take hundreds of millions of dollars.

Although adjournment plans no longer hinged on quick disposal of the bill, the senate worked beyond the dinner hour to take it past a long series of perfecting amendments, a motion by Senator Lewis of Illinois, Democrat whip, to return it to the finance committee, and then the final vote.

The house and senate earlier had adopted a resolution for a week's recess of congress, beginning Monday.

Passage of the bill after only three days of debate was said by several senators to have set a record for action on such an important revenue measure.

One of the bill's supporters said he was "going to apologize for it." Foes charged that it would not eliminate existing tax evasion evils and would

The
VENGEANCE OF DA GAMA

1936 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

VASCO DA GAMA, fearless Portuguese mariner, rounded the Cape of Good Hope, late in 1497, and dropped anchor in the bay of Calicut, India. He was the first European to establish an eastern water route to India, and now he sought out Calicut's ruler, the Zamorin. The Zamorin's reception was cordial, but the fanatical Mohammedan merchants seized Da Gama and his escort, and held them for ransom. When Paul da Gama, Vasco's brother and companion, heard of this, he seized six nobles and held them until the prisoners were exchanged. Da Gama departed, swearing vengeance.

Another expedition under Alvarez Cabral arrived at Calicut and set up a factory, but as soon as Cabral departed the Mohammedans murdered the Europeans. This was Da Gama's cue for revenge. Leading an armada of ten ships, in 1502, he sailed for India. Without warning, he terrorized the coast, raided cities, fired ships, mutilated men, women and children, and laid Calicut waste. In 1898 Portugal issued stamps commemorating the voyage of Da Gama 400 years earlier. The one shown here pictures the Zamorin's reception of the navigator.

Your Baby's Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBURN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

There probably are not two babies aged 12 months with the same degree of development, but ordinarily a 12-month-old baby has attained certain abilities which indicate that it is progressing normally.

It can open and shut lids on boxes, pull things out of boxes, and, in some instances, put them back. A 12-month-old baby can put a cork in a bottle, and is capable of being fairly skillful in handling small objects.

A year-old baby will make funny faces to amuse itself, but should not be encouraged too greatly in this performance for fear it may have to be punished later, to get it to stop.

Among other physical accomplishments, it can throw a ball, walk with help, climb stairs on hands and knees, lower itself from a standing to a sitting position, bring from a cup, and push to keep its hands out of its mouth.

Some 12-month-old babies learn to make strokes with a pencil, or with a crayon.

Among its intellectual accomplishments, the year-old baby may pull off its own stockings or cap, wave "bye-bye," and play "pat-a-cake."

While these are not extraordinary achievements, they indicate an awareness of the world which is exceedingly important, in contrast to the infant who does not learn, but who sits inert, with a vapid countenance.

There are ways in which the 12-month-old baby may be encouraged in its development. If it is given a specific time when it may wave its arms and kick its legs, if it is provided with equipment such as a sand pile, dishes, spoons, and sieves, small steps and boxes to encourage climbing, and blocks with which to build, it is more likely to develop proficiency in handling these materials than if it is left absolutely alone without any assistance.

If a child less than 6 months old is given one wooden cube and then another one, it will probably drop the first one to take hold of the second. Between the ages of 6 and 9 months, the baby learns that it is more efficient to reach for an object with one hand.

By the age of 9 months, the baby probably will learn to hold one cube while it reaches for the second one with its other hand, but at this age three cubes prove to be too much, and the baby will drop one or both of the first two, to take the third.

A 12-month-old baby may hold the two cubes and reach for the third, occasionally trying to reach it with its mouth.

By the time the baby is 18 months old, it can accommodate four or five cubes without dropping any of them.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Mothers now face vacations, which, although they smack of magic to the children, don't thrill their mothers any too much. Up late, meals delayed, calling every second to locate the venturesome, patching up quarrels and nothing in order. Thus the picture unfolds itself for the summer ahead.

Vacation time is always hard on mothers. Gone are the long peaceful hours; gone the quiet in which baby so peacefully slept his quota. Doors slamming, things torn up, clothes never right, and eternal appetites to be appeased at odd hours. Is it any wonder we hunt up calendars to see how long we have to grin and bear it?

Yet, the children aren't to blame. They put in the days as best they can and after the first flush of freedom wears off, they are as bored as anybody.

Your Home Scheme Is Best

The best way to take anything is to face it. The next thing is to control a situation of letting it control you. The only way to keep control is to plan and then live up to the plan as closely as possible. In giving the following suggestions I haven't the least idea that they can be lived up to, not exactly that is. But perhaps some mothers will see what I am driving at when I say to do so and thus. It may not be your idea at all, but it may guide the way for your own more practical notions.

Firstly: Get the kids up on time each morning for their regular breakfast. Let them eat together and not when they chance to grace the table.

Secondly: Have some plans up your sleeve each day to get them interested in something and help pass the time away.

I think I should spot some old boards somewhere to be had for the taking, or a song, and then supply nails and hammers and an idea for a dog house, a chicken coop, or a boat. Maybe there is no dog or hen, or so much as a drain to float a match box in. But that doesn't matter. Anyway you might buy a hen or salvage a pup somewhere. If such a thing couldn't be considered, Johnny can always make a wagon of sorts, or paint the ash-can or make props for the beans.

Give Them Small Tasks.

Thirdly: Let them help out with the work. Assign some small task for each child each day. It won't be done to your liking, but it will be stabilizing and an anchor. And besides it might ease more than you think. Unless James is too weak entirely, he can and must cut the grass. Lucella can certainly make beds up somehow if she is high enough to see over Julianna can dust up the worst and set chairs straight.

It doesn't matter exactly what they are given to do, or what play is suggested, no great shakes whether Henry is keeping a book of pressed flowers or gathering locusts or caterpillars in the interest of riddance. The thing that does count is suggestion and a certain amount of co-operation on your part.

It is better to go the wrong direction than to drift aimlessly and without purpose. It is purpose that will help the days go by. Purpose of one kind or another that will save mama's nerves. Purpose that will lead to other ideas and smarten up the lazy. Drifting children are nearly always lazy children, and cross ones.

And altogether one of the most picturesque and colorful men the Old West ever produced.

So Mr. Fellows tells about him, and about the Ringlings, and about the famous Lillian Leitzel, and about the strange people and the odd events of circus life.

He gives an inside picture of the endlessly complicated and expensive organization of a modern circus—leaving you, incidentally, to wonder how on earth a circus ever makes any money—and tosses in an almost endless number of anecdotes of the big top.

Altogether, it is an ultra-readable book.

His book is called "This Way to the Big Show" (Viking: $3.50), and anyone who ever got a kick out of the circus should find it a rich mine of good reading.

Mr. Fellows started out as a circus press agent way back in the '90s, and has been at it ever since. He spent years with Buffalo Bill, and in his book he gives a full-length portrait of that remarkable character—frontiersman and showman, a soft touch for out-of-luck old-timers, a gargantuan drinker when the mood seized him.

nonchalance she had chosen the studio headed by Hollywood's arch-Republican, Louis B. Mayer.

The two women exclaimed over this and that glistering item, tried on emerald rings and diamond bracelets. Total value of the assortment was well over a quarter million dollars.

Neither woman bought anything. The salesman had come, with his bodyguards, to show Miss Crawford a couple of star sapphires so large and famous that they have names—the "Star of the Orient" and the "Star of Bombay."

The actress owns the finest collection of star sapphires in Hollywood. With these two gems it probably would be one of the finest collections in the world. Miss Crawford seemed relieved when the director called her for rehearsals.

First All Around

A lot of deserving young people are getting their first breaks in a brisk picture called "Women Are Trouble."

The original story was the first that George Harmon Cox ever sold. The screen play was the first that Richard Blake ever had written for a studio.

Michael Fessier (author of "Fully Dressed and in His Right Mind") is having his first experience as a producer.

Errol Taggart, an assistant director for nine years, is director of this one. Florence Rice is a leading lady for the first time, and Stuart Erwin has his first job as leading man. It's a familiar role, though—for a bout the twentieth time Erwin will be seen as a newspaper reporter.

Hard to Be "Regular"

Between Scenes of "Sweet Alices," Director Archie Mayo delivered a few informal remarks on the most subject of "How to Be Sane, Though in Hollywood." He can't abide swank, affectation, or temperament—yet admits that even in his own case he has to make a deliberate effort to keep a fair perspective.

When he leaves the studio of an evening, Mayo puts the movie business out of his thoughts. Won't talk shop with anybody. For friends he has chosen doctors, lawyers, storekeepers—people outside the flicker profession.

Dizzy Dean Again Beats N. Y. Giants

Cardinal Hurler, With One Day's Rest, Wins 11th Victory

ST. LOUIS, (AP)—With only a one day rest Dizzy Dean returned to the hill Sunday and pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a six to three victory over the New York Giants. Dizzy routed the Giants nine to two Friday in the first of a four-game series and his victory Sunday increased the Red Birds' first place margin over New York to three full games.

The elder Dean was given splendid support in the field Sunday and his comrades wounded Harold Schumacher for ten hits, finally knocking him out of the box in the seventh, during which they broke a three to three tie with a three run rally. Schumacher was replaced by Fitzsimmons. It was Dizzy's 11th triumph of the season and statistically inclined persons said it was the first time in his career that he had started and won two games from Bill Terry's team in one series.

Sunday's game attracted 17,000 persons, somewhat less than the number who saw the Giants take four to three and seven to nothing victories Saturday.

a modest house in a modest locality, with a telephone lineman and a contractor as their immediate neighbors. Mayo admits a little shamefully that he's building a new house now, but insists it's only because his wife begged for some more closet space.

He reads topical magazines, but little about movies. He goes to New York whenever he has a chance. He acknowledges that his standard of living has risen, but declares it has brought him no additional happiness. Archie Mayo works hard at being just an ordinary guy.

Stunt "Child"

Tragedy overtook Henry Stone when he was 26 years old. He grew four inches. Before that he had been a midget, eligible for circuses and vaudeville, and he had made a good living as the "strong man" in a midget troupe.

But now he was neither a normal-sized man, nor one of the Little People. Just a runt. He tried being a jockey, but they wouldn't let him ride on the major tracks. Too small.

So he came to Hollywood, and here he is doing very well as a double for child actors. Next time you see a youngster falling from a runaway horse or skating in front of an automobile, it's likely to be Henry Stone.

Currently he is technical adviser to Mickey Rooney, who plays a jockey's role in "Blood Lines." He's also Mickey's stand-in. They're great friends.

When Overhead Gets Too High

Like a business man made desperate by steadily increasing losses, Senorita Anita Lizana, Chilean tennis champion, threw caution to the winds and, in an effort to stem the tide, hurled her racket at the ball that soared beyond her reach. She lost the match, played at Surbiton, England, to Dorothy Round.

I Will Be Worthy of It

I may not reach the heights I seek,
My untired strength may fail me;
Or, half way up the mountain peak
Piercing tempests may assail me.
But though that place I never gain,
I will be worthy of it.
I may not triumph in success,
Despite my earnest labor;
May not grasp results that bless
The efforts of my neighbor.
But though my goal I never see
This thought shall always dwell with me—
I will be worthy of it.
The golden glow of love's light
May never fall on my way;
My path may always lead through night,
Like some deserted bi-way,
But though life's dearest joy I miss
There lies a nameless strength in this—
I will be worthy of it.—E. W. W.

State Delegation Leaves for Meet

Expect the Nomination of Governor Landon by Republicans

CHICAGO.—(P)—Leaders of the Arkansas uninstructed delegation of 11 to the Republican national convention predicted Sunday that Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas would be nominated on the third or fourth ballot at Cleveland.

"I believe the convention will be over by Friday night," said Osro Cobb of Little Rock, chairman of the Republican state committee and gubernatorial candidate. "After favorite son ballots are cast on the first and second ballots, the convention, in my opinion, will nominate Governor Landon. I expect the platform will present a more serious problem than the nomination."

Martin A. Eisele, 82-year-old Hot Springs financier who has attended every Republican convention except one since 1888, was another who saw the Kansas governor as the choice at Cleveland and commented: "Our party has a grand opportunity this year to elect a president."

Several members of the delegation said there was "a possibility that the party will nominate a Democrat of the Jeffersonian type for the vice presidency." A majority of the Arkansans, however, were opposed to such a move.

Wrestling Date Is Changed Tuesday

In the Future All Matches Will Be Held on That Night, Mauldin Says

Due to conflicting dates caused by the opening of wrestling in several new towns throughout the state, all matches held at the American Legion Stadium in the future will be presented on Tuesday night.

This change in date will take place immediately. The next match will be held on Tuesday night, June 9th.

This week's main event brings back the winner of last week's eye-gouging contest.

Lefty (Pop-Eye) Williams, the car-voring play-boy from Cabot, returns to take on Frank (Frankenstein) Wolf in the two-hour feature match.

This will be Wolf's initial appearance in a local ring. According to Promoter Geo. D. Kelley of the American Legion Stadium in Little Rock, Wolf is one of the roughest ever appearing in that city. He is reported to be on a par with such menaces of the mat as Sailor Moran, Wild Red Berry, and Gil McCross.

In signing up Wolf for this match a man has been selected that will give the burly burper from Cabot a run for his money.

A forty-five semi-final match will open Tuesday night's card, with the principals to be announced Tuesday afternoon.

The admission will be 25c. W. C. Page will referee. Opening match starts at 8:15.

To Free Negroes Held in Strike

13 Will Be Given Liberty After Arrest in Crittenden County

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—(P)—Governor Futrell said Sunday night that 13 negroes jailed in Crittenden county in connection with the East Arkansas cotton choppers' strike "have been sufficiently punished and will be released from prison."

The governor made the statement Sunday night after attending commencement exercises at the University of Arkansas and a dinner in his honor.

Sam E. Whitaker, special assistant United States attorney general, and Ranger Superintendent Gray Albright completed an investigation of the cotton choppers' strike Sunday.

Sheriff Howard Curlin of Crittenden county announced several days ago arrest of a number of negroes on charges of assault to kill in connection with alleged firing from ambush upon the field hands.

Negroes Attacked by White Group

Police Chief Announces That Charges Will Be Filed

WYNNE, Ark.—(P)—Chief of Police Frank Clyde of Wynne said Sunday night that he expected to file charges Monday or Tuesday in connection with an attack on two negroes here early Saturday morning by a large group of white men.

Chief Clyde said that the white men, traveling in automobiles and light trucks, drove to Wynne from St. Francis county between 2 a. m. and 3 a. m. Saturday blocked streets in the negro quarters of the city and "beat up" a negro boy and a negro minister.

"The men were, to the best of my knowledge, from the Round Pond and Widener sections down in St. Francis county," Chief Clyde said.

"They were hunting for a negro named Bennet who was accused of drawing a gun on a white man during the excitement over the cotton choppers' strike in that county."

"They came up here and without consulting any of the local authorities, blocked up the streets in the negro section and catching a boy named Young, beat him until he told them where Bennet's brother, a well known negro minister, lived. "The men then went to Bennet's house and slapped him a times to make him tell where his brother was hiding. The negro minister is well known here and has nothing to do with this cotton choppers' strike."

Benjamin Franklin attended school for only two years, between the ages of 8 and 10.

Emporia's Sage Has Great Fun

A veteran of many political battles, William Allen White, "sage of Emporia," was in his element at the G. O. P. national convention in Cleveland when the candid camera snapped him in these poses. Judging from the smile in the upper photo, things were going his way. Below, he was listening, with quizzical expression, to some of the gossip going the rounds.
